

here's no dancing around it. When former American Idol judge Paula Abdul recently reunited with Simon Cowell and Randy Jackson for the show's grand finale, the "It's All About Feeling Good" singer, 53, seemed to be defying the aging process with a few facial tweaks, most noticeably to her cheeks. "They appear more pronounced now than when she was younger," observes Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Dr. Josef Hadeed, who has not treated the choreographer turned So You Think You Can Dance panelist. The culprit?

Dr. Hadeed says one possibility could be implants, which are inserted through a small incision in the mouth, then slipped into position on the cheekbone. "An incorrect placement of cheek fillers could also have created that unnatural look," notes facial plastic surgeon

Dr. Payman Simoni of Beverly Hills, who likewise does not call Paula a patient. "It actually makes her look older." Other work the '80s pop icon has seemingly had is more subtle — but effective. Dr. Simoni believes Botox injections are smoothing her forehead, crow's-feet and bunny lines (wrinkles beside the nose). Paula's complexion, too, is straight-up youthful, thanks to possible "chemical peels to rejuvenate her skin and laser treatments for pigment changes and fine wrinkles," adds Dr. Hadeed. Everlasting beauty don't come easy!

BEFORE OR AFTER APPARENT BOOB JOB?

Since 2000 (left), the model has been strutting the catwalk for Victoria's Secret. But the onceflat-chested Brazilian beauty has a lot more va-va-voom these days thanks to an apparent breast augmentation. While the 34-year-old Angel has not confirmed she went under the knife, her fuller, rounder bust isn't likely the result of an amazing push-up bra. So what do guys make of the enhancement? The ones we polled deemed it heavenly!
